

Ashwood Pumping Station, Kingswinford

Ashwood was the first major borehole source works to be developed in the southern half of the Company's area. The top left photograph was taken in 1893, 9 years after the first engine house was completed. Two further phases would follow in 1897 and 1904